Pipeline companies and the banks funding them want to build three new massive pipelines from Canada's tar sands (vast deposits of some of the dirtiest oil on Earth).

These pipelines would snake across North America and out to the coast. Along the way, spills could poison drinking water, pollute our oceans, and endanger wildlife.

Since pipelines seek to cross Indigenous communities' lands without consent, they violate Indigenous rights.

We won't let banks gamble all this away.

That's why we're standing with Indigenous communities and taking action to tell banks to stop funding these toxic, climate-polluting pipelines.

We choose water, #NotPipelines.

What do you choose?
