

Looking back at 2023, words like 'tragic' and 'chaotic' initially spring to mind. From the atrocities of war and conflict, to the ongoing climate crisis resulting in the warmest year on record, 2023 was filled with major global disruptions and uncertainty. Yet as I reflect on the year that has been with Greenpeace Nordic volunteers, these darker emotions are replaced with a sense of hope and optimism about the incredible impact Greenpeace makes on local, regional and indeed global levels. Our volunteers show us that by taking courageous actions, we can not only change how we feel about the world, but take brave steps to make our vision of a better future a reality.

In Denmark, Greenpeace volunteers supported the local community in Stigsnæs to bring national attention to the Norwegian oil giant Equinor dumping toxic oil wastewater in Agersø Sund. The environment minister reacted immediately; a testament to the power of grassroots movements and how working together at a local level can achieve change with ripple effects in the wider world.

The volunteer-led demonstrations across Finland in the lead up to the elections are a key reminder that individuals taking collective action is the way we win the change we want to see in the world. Similarly, our work with the Deep Sea Mining campaign in Norway saw our volunteers peacefully confront the Norwegian Prime Minister in Oslo and support efforts to pressure parliamentarians to vote against Deep Sea Mining.

2023 also marked a change in how our Nordic volunteer network operates: we shifted away from local groups towards specialist teams. During the spring of 2023, our volunteer specialist team of Greenspeakers ran workshops and lectures about forests and civil disobedience as part of our Skogsvärn tour across Sápmi / Norrland in Sweden. By engaging with local communities, the tour highlighted the value of exchanging knowledge and experience as a way to strengthen the volunteer community and increase the impact of our activities. The ongoing success of the Greenspeaker team was a major catalyst for us to start up other specialist teams in lobbyism, social media and investigations.

Greenpeace volunteers strengthen our ability to campaign for a green and just future. As 2023 has come to a close, I am truly inspired and thankful for the skills, energy and dedication that our volunteers bring to our Nordic

About the report

This report is made to show the activity of the Greenpeace Nordic Volunteer community in 2023. In the report you will find pictures, numbers, maps and graphs summarising the year in the Nordic, and then more detailed information for each Nordic country.

Following the country pages you find more information about the specialist and action teams. In 2023 we did a restructuring of our whole volunteering programme with shifting from organising volunteers through local groups toward organising them based on specialisation. How this process has gone, and what the new specialist teams have been up to you can see on page 10.

The activities and volunteer hours in the report is based on the numbers of activities that have been reported in the Action and Volunteer Units throughout the year. The numbers of new volunteers and total number of volunteers are based on members of the volunteer platform Greenpeace Community.

Scan the QR-code to follow Greenpeace Nordics volunteers on social media, and they will bring you along behind the scenes on the journey of taking action with Greenpeace!

Activities

In 2023 the Greenpeace Nordic volunteers arranged or contributed to a total of 323 activities. The activities took place in the 54 locations shown on the map, as well as online.

The Volunteer Survey

Greenpeace Nordic conducted a Volunteer survey amongst all the volunteers in November 2023. In total the survey had 61 responses. This is a short summary of the results of the survey.

The age of our volunteers ranges from 18-80 years.

We have people volunteering that are from 15 different countries/ nationalities

Our volunteers have been involved with Greenpeace for up to 25+ years. 55% of volunteers have been involved for more than 2 years.

90% of volunteers feel that Greenpeace Nordic works to promote a diverse, open and inclusive volunteering programme.

80% rate their volunteering experience with Greenpeace Nordic as 7/10 or higher.

Volunteers are most motivated by (in order):

- Make a difference, change the state of the world
- Be part of the environmental movement
- Participate in actions
- Socialise and spend time with like-minded people
- Learn more about environmental issues

Specialist teams

In 2023 Greenpeace Nordic moved away from structuring volunteers through local groups, and started having specialist teams as the main volunteering structure. The goal is to have teams specialised on artivism, investigations, greenspeaking, lobbyism and social media.

The Greenspeaker team has already been a team for many years and has continued to do presentations and speaker tours also this year. In the end of March the Lobby team had its kick off, and has been training, meeting and lobbying since. In August the Social Media team followed with a kick off and training and the team is now creating output for the new volunteering channels. And finally the Investigations team had its first start up training in November and have taken on some investigation tasks already. The Artivism team is set to start up in 2024.

Action teams

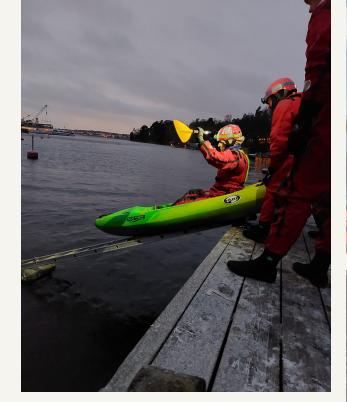

team

In 2023 we had active teams focused on general activism, as well as boating, climbing and kayaking.

teams

Throughout the year we ran the Introduction to Civil Disobedience five times, our NVDA-training three times, and organised one NVDA-skillshare.

We also arranged one basic boat training, three intermediate boat trainings, one basic climbing training, one basic kayak training and one intermediate kayak training. In addition the action teams also had self organised practice days and weekends.
